- b. Technology can help us find new ideas.
- c. In the middle of the 20th century, making models was really popular.
- d. Reading was one of the most popular pastimes.

Hobbies: then and now

1. _____ A lot of parents and children used to spend their free time making toy cars, boats and planes with wood or plastic parts. Nowadays people still work on models, but they usually have electronic parts, and they don't look like traditional models.
2. _____ In the past, like now, if you sent a letter, you put a stamp on it, and a lot of people loved collecting them. Some people even paid a lot of money for unusual ones. These days however, people rarely send letters. Collecting stamps has become a very unusual hobby.
3. _____ It was very common to see parents reading along with their children at bedtime. Now, people seem to be too busy and children don't read as much. Most people spend their free time using technology instead - tablets, smartphones and other devices have changed the way in which we have fun.
4. _____ If you want to find out about a new or exciting hobby nowadays, it is really easy to go online and find what you want to know in seconds. In the past however, it took a long time. People asked friends or relatives, or looked for information in books in the library.
